With the report in hand, she promptly visited the local government hospital, where she underwent further evaluation and surgery. The entire treatment was made accessible through her Below Poverty Line (BPL) card, which covered the expenses. Now fully recovered and in good health, Jayanthi has resumed work as a housemaid and is once again supporting her family. She is deeply grateful to Concerns for organizing the camp that helped detect her condition at an early stage and enabled her to receive timely treatment.

Due to severe financial constraints, Vignesh had to drop out of school. Through the efforts of a Concerns Community Outreach Worker, Vignesh was motivated and supported to return to education. He was re-enrolled in the local Government school and is now studying in 5th standard, attending classes regularly. To ensure his continued engagement, the team monitors his attendance and also included him in the Teens Club, which encourages children to stay in school and promotes peer learning and support. Vignesh's story is a powerful example of how consistent outreach and care can help children return to education and build a better future.
